Attorney General Allen, who with Pelletier was present by direction of the court, then moved that the pleadings in the case be ordered completed by Monday. The court took this motion under advisement.

District Attorney Pelletier had asked for postponement of pleadings until January because, he said, his candidate dacy for mayor would occup much acceptance of a very difficult part.

The attorney general, who filed the charges against Pelletier alleging various instances of misconduct, contended that political considerations should not be permitted to interfere with the prosecution of the charges.

D. J. McMillan was chosen chairman. James Mackay informed the assemblage that application had already been made for a charter for a new bank and the play. This was greatly enjoyed.
